

The parent company Clear Channel Communications should not be allowed to enjoy the heightened publicity they are receiving from a blatant attempt to spike profits from increasing listeners over our public safety. Moral ethics must come into play somewhere in here, and I believe the FCC should do more than reprimand a few DJs, they should revoke the license. This would prevent them from enjoying their profits.

Thank you,
George